EDF Energy	Bryan Hale	27/11/2015	NA	Yes	Do you already have a negative consumption code in existence today that you can re-use?	Yes, the suggestion was to re-instate CPN00321 as a valid reason as to why the AQ failed to calculate a new value, from the validated meter reading that had been submitted. This reason /exception exists in the current AQ calculation process and, has been adopted into the new process to accommodate, any negative consumption that may be created due to historic meter reading information.
