2.0 Modifications

2.1 Review Proposal 0267 “Review of UNC Governance Arrangements”

It was recognised that progress was largely on hold until Ofgem’s publication of the Industry Codes Governance Review Final Proposals, which were previously expected by the end of January.

In light of Proposal 0286 having been raised, Extending Modification Panel Voting Rights to Consumer Representatives, ST suggested arranging a separate Workstream meeting to consider in particular issues surrounding Panel constitution and voting. JD advised he would be willing to attend to provide an overview of Ofgem recommendations to help the discussions move forward even if the Final Proposals have not been published.

The Workstream agreed to meet on 30 March.

3.0 Topics

3.1 014Gov, Review of User Pays Process

TD drew attention to Ofgem's recent decisions on Proposal 0276, whereby the Modification Proposal was approved but Ofgem had intimidated that the y would not accept the supporting ACS change. JD explained the issues with 0276 centred on the cost recovery methodology - it was based on capacity booked on a particular day and Ofgem did not consider this a suitable method for such an enduring change. JD also confirmed that a further letter would be issued providing more detail on why Ofgem had said they would veto the proposed ACS change.

CWr was concerned this decision would have implications for a number of User Pays Proposals, including those discussed by the Panel earlier in the day. JD agreed that any charges put forward in the ACS would need to take into account funding and try to avoid methodologies based on a snapshot in time. He also confirmed Ofgem's role is to veto methodology changes, not the charges, in the ACS – it is important the methodology is agreed in advance, in particular the recovery of development costs.

RHe was concerned that development cost methodologies based on cost recovery over a period of time needed to consider the time value of money and may require an increase in charges to reflect this. RHe confirmed that when developing Proposals and assessing costs National grid NTS have discussed the identification of capex and operating costs with xoserve to help provide clarity to the build up of charges.

ST felt the User Pays process has generally worked well, with Proposal 0224 providing a good example. It was noted that some eligible Shippers had said they had no intention of using the service, but would still be required to pay a share of the development costs. This was the methodology set out in the Proposal and consequently mirrored in the ACS. JD added that Shippers could have raised alternative changing proposals during the process but chose not too.

ST asked if National Grid NTS would be bringing forward a different change to the ACS to accommodate Proposal 0276 for consideration at the Transmission Workstream. RHe was unable to confirm this. TD pointed out that, as an ACS issue, this is not a UNC nor consequently Workstream issue.

4.0 Any Other Business

None raised.
