1 Summary

Is this a Self-Governance Modification?

The Modification Panel determined that the criteria for Self-Governance are met, as this modification is not expected to have a material impact on competition, consumers, the operation of gas networks or the Modification Rules.

Why Change?

At the time of the implementation of the original Network Code in 1995, fax was a more common form of business communication while email was in its infancy. Since then email has superseded fax as a more efficient and common form of business communication but remains disallowed as an official form of UNC communication in most circumstances, despite all relevant parties using it across other aspects of their business.

A number of Modification Proposals both in the Gas and Electricity markets have allowed limited use of email communications in specific circumstances, specifically UNC Modification Proposal 033, 'Notification to Users of Emergency Incidents – Impacts on Code Communications' and Balancing and Settlement Code Modification Proposal P113, 'Email Communication under the Code'.

Since these proposals there has been little expansion of the use of email as an allowable code communication in either the Gas or Electricity Industry despite its widespread use in daily communication both with internal and external parties.

Given the prevalence of email communication today we see no reason why such communications should not be allowed via email in suitable circumstances.

Solution

It is proposed to amend the UNC to allow e-mail as a valid communication notice alongside post and facsimile.

Additional minor changes to the UNC regarding contact details have been identified and amended to include e-mail. These have been included in the legal text. Changes to UK Link and Contingency arrangements are not within the scope of this proposal.

Relevant Objectives

Implementation of this Modification Proposal would further Special Condition A11.1 (f), the promotion of efficiency in the implementation and administration of the Code as it implements existing best practise regarding the inclusion of email as a communication format across the industry.

Implementation

As self-governance procedures are proposed, implementation could be sixteen business days after a Modification Panel decision to implement, subject to no Appeal being raised.

2 Why Change?

Email has superseded fax as a more efficient and common form of business communication but remains disallowed as an official form of UNC communication, despite all relevant parties using it across other aspects of their business.

There can also be issues concerning the reliability of faxes and a follow up phone call to confirm receipt is often required. Emails avoid this scenario with reliable notification systems and a 'bounce back' system if the email fails to send correctly. Emails are also quicker to receive, create and send. Cost effective storage systems exist to efficiently archive emails for quick recovery, which many businesses have in place already, while faxes have to be stored manually at extra cost both in terms of storage space and the time taken to manually recover any necessary documents.

UNC Modification Proposal 033, 'Notification to Users of Emergency Incidents – Impacts on Code Communications', extended allowable forms of communication to include internet and email to aid Transporters in complying with the provisions detailed within the Shipper Incident Communication Procedure (SICP) and was implemented in 2005.

Arguments in favour of allowing internet and email communication included 'improved operational efficiencies', 'real-time updates to Users' and 'improved quality of information'. We believe these arguments could apply to other scenarios where email communication may be of benefit'.

Ofgem's decision letter stated their support for 'the use of internet and email facilities where they bring efficient gains'. They also stated their expectation that appropriate levels of security would be put in place regarding internet and email security and we would expect this to also apply wherever email communications were allowed as a result of this proposal being implemented.

In the Electricity Market, Modification Proposal P113, 'Email Communication under the Code' allowed general communication given by the Balancing and Settlement Code Committee (BSCCo) to all parties simultaneously to be sent by email.

Ofgem's decision letter stated that where it is used for general notices, email had 'demonstrated itself to be as reliable as postal or facsimile distribution methods, while delivering significant gains in administrative efficiency' and the proposal was implemented in 2003.

Over the past couple of years NGN has become aware of several situations that have arisen where the use of email as an allowable code communication would have resulted in better processes.

At the 6 October 2011 Transmission Workgroup, Force Majeure and payment of Exit Charges was discussed as a Workgroup Issue. The use of fax as a code communication was questioned due to its reliability and the potential use of email was raised as an alternative.

Several sections of the UNC have been identified that could be improved by the inclusion of email as an allowable form of communication, specifically UNC TPD S3.4.5 and V3.4.7. These are detailed further below.

3 Solution

It is proposed to amend General Terms B of the UNC to allow e-mail as a valid communication notice alongside post and facsimile. This includes a 'deeming' rule to determine when an email is deemed received.

Additional minor changes to the UNC regarding contact details have been identified and amended to include e-mail, including the addition of an e-mail address as part of the requested contact details in UNC TPD V2.1 and V3.4. These have been included in the legal text.

Included as an Appendix for discussion and context are proposed changes to the allowed communications of entries in the UK Link Manual Appendix 5B to take to the UK Link Committee for discussion and implementation. Changes to communications made by UK Link and for Contingency arrangements are not within the scope of this proposal.

User Pays
Classification of the modification as User Pays, or not, and the justification for such classification.
There are no anticipated costs to the implementation or operation of this proposal. No User Pays service would be created or amended by implementation of this modification and it is not, therefore, classified as a User Pays Modification.
Identification of Users of the service, the proposed split of the recovery between Gas Transporters and Users for User Pays costs and the justification for such view.
N/A
Proposed charge(s) for application of User Pays charges to Shippers.
N/A

b) Coordinated, efficient and economic operation of (i) the combined pipe-line system, and/ or (ii) the pipe-line system of one or more other relevant gas transporters.	None
c) Efficient discharge of the licensee's obligations.	None

e) Provision of reasonable economic incentives for relevant suppliers to secure that the domestic customer supply security standards... are satisfied as respects the availability of gas to their domestic customers.	None
f) Promotion of efficiency in the implementation and administration of the Code.	Positive
g) Compliance with the Regulation and any relevant legally binding decisions of the European Commission and/or the Agency for the Co-operation of Energy Regulators.	None

Impacts to Relevant Objectives

Implementation of this Modification Proposal would further Special Condition A11.1 (f), the promotion of efficiency in the implementation and administration of the Code as it implements existing best practise regarding email use across the industry.

5 Implementation

There are no anticipated costs to the implementation of this Modification Proposal.

As this modification will not force Users to send e-mail and in many places will simply codify existing practice, implementation should be as soon as possible after a Panel direction.
